(Free) Download. el-20071 Since, I can not use wget as wget is a command used on the terminal, I use the bat file to download every file I want from the web site. The bat file I wrote is: C:\Program Files\RSPLINK\RSPLINK.exe as for the RSPLINK.exe file that I wrote, I wrote it as: (C:\Program Files\RSPLINK\RSPLINK.exe) in this instance, RSPLINK.exe is my filename that I am about to use in the command. By now, you have noticed that there is a space between the first and last quote marks in the command, that is because I used the backslash and the space to escape the quotes. The parameter of the command I use to download all the file is: "C:\Program Files\RSPLINK\RSPLINK.exe" The "" is the url where I want to download the file from. Also, I don't want the browser to ask me to save the file because it is only for my own use and I don't want to waste my time downloading and saving the file. As for the parameter: "12345678" is the eight digit number that I wrote in the original url address. This parameter is just a request to the server and not the address of the file or the actual file name. As it is a parameter, 82138339de
