I just noticed that I have read the "Rules" section on the site a few times, but I'm not entirely clear what they mean. In fact, it looks like I don't even know what a comment is. The only thing I see that makes sense is that they will tell me what I have done wrong, or what not to do. So I want to know, do moderators really enforce the rules or do they just suggest them to people? A: The moderators are there to enforce the rules, and they carry significant flags with them: A diamond will be attached to everything you say and have said in the past, including questions, answers and comments. Everything you will do will be seen under a different light. How do you feel about that? If you see a user consistently in flagging posts (or in general, as stated in the banner at

Q: I want to add a count of duplicate records in my BigQuery view, or do you have a better solution? I have a BigQuery view with source data loaded from Google Sheets that allows the creation of charts that pull records from the view based on the UNIX timestamp. The data in my view looks like this: ----- | timestamp | onsite |

----- | 17161481533208640 | false || 17161478481161360 | false || 17161530856401600 | true ||
17161481533208640 | true | ----- What I want to do is count how many times there are similar timestamps that are duplicated, so my view would look like this: ----- | timestamp | onsite |

----- | 17161481533208640 | false || 17161481533208640 | true | -----

One way to go about this might be to use a loop in the query that creates a new column onsite that has a binary value (0 or 1). However, using this method may require creating a new column for every record and is not very efficient. Can anyone suggest a more efficient way to do this? A: SELECT *, count(distinct timestamp) OVER() as num_dups FROM Q: How to wait for embedded content to load before continuing in jasmine I have a basic test case (not testdriven!) that consists of two scenario s: function getLocation() { var location = {}; // fetch the location from an external source $.ajax({ url: "", type: 'GET' }
