Nucleotide sequences of the 18S and 26S ribosomal DNAs (rDNA) are used in polypeptide sequencing for classification of Eukarya and Archaeobacteria in biology. The same sequences are used for phylogenetic analysis of other unicellular eukaryotes. About three-quarters of the smallest rRNAs (18S) occur in many multicellular eukaryotes, but their sequences have diverged rapidly, giving an overall similarity of only 50%. We have previously mapped the large subunit (LSU) ribosomal RNA gene cluster and determined the organization of the 23S and 5S RNA genes. Here we show that a functional copy of the small subunit (SSU) rRNA gene is also located in this gene cluster, a further extension of the distribution of plant ribosomal RNAs in the rDNA cluster. We also provide evidence for the expression of the SSU-LSU rRNA cluster in other protists, and discuss implications for phylogenetic studies of non-Eukarya. Lester Briggs Lester William Briggs (1895–1973) was a British physicist. Biography Briggs was born in Bristol, England. He graduated from Emmanuel College, Cambridge with a BSc in 1912 and a PhD in 1915. He spent the next three years as a radio physics postgraduate in Cambridge, working on magneto-optical effects in helical antennas. Briggs became Professor of Physics at the University of Kent in 1919. During the Second World War he was responsible for helping to
