Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a toner for developing a latent image formed by an electrophotographic process or an electrostatic recording process. The invention also relates to an image forming method and an image forming apparatus. Description of the Related Art According to a conventional image forming process, an electrostatic image is formed on an image bearing member by an electrophotographic process and the electrostatic image is developed to a visible image by a toner. In recent years, an image forming apparatus using a high-resolution latent image bearing member, such as a low-power laser scanner and a digital copying machine is in widespread use. This requires, more than ever, the demand for an image forming apparatus that gives a high image quality at high speed. To meet the requirement for a toner that gives a high image quality at high speed, a ton
