You start the game with a small inventory of three items. Move around the level to find hidden key cards. Each key card provides the player with the ability to use an in-game powerup. Once the player collects the desired number of powerups, the player is brought into a boss battle. Afterwards, the player will be given a time limit to reach the next level. If you want to support Septic Savages, feel free to contribute via Patreon or PayPal. We'd really appreciate it! Game "Septic Savages" Character Art: I have a graphic designer friend who does the artwork for me. He does the backgrounds first, while I write and develop the game's character and enemies. He also makes the character models and designs all the traps. I playtest each one hundreds of times before releasing them to the public. Publisher's Description Splashescreen is a program that shows a splashscreen. After splashscreen is shown, other applications are started. Other applications that are started are excluded by exception. There are many uses for splashscreen, for example, launching of an application, giving a busy signal to the user, and giving a warning message. Splashescreen programs are available for several languages. Some of them run on all computers that run Java, and some can run on only on specific computers. Splashescreen is one of the easiest ways to run a program that shows a splashscreen without manually using script with a timer. E-mail This Review Thank You,! Trainz is a massively multiplayer rail-sim racing game set in a deep and engaging world of great freedom and power. Trainz has thousands of players driving more than one million players on trains of various nations and eras, like the legendary German Electropanhagen or even the legendary Comet of the USA. Trainz is free to play, and its thrilling multiplayer where you have a chance to compete with your friends or enemies always gives you a tremendous sense of satisfaction. Trainz has been nominated as "Best Simulation Game of 2014" by Game Skinny and has been voted "Overall Game of the Year" by Game Informers' readers. Trainz was also "Easiest Game To Get Started With" in the MAG award in the first place.

Action The locomotive is moving forwards with a leisurely pace. The train coasts at almost 100 km/h along the endless rail line. In the rear axle you will find a relief wagon, a refreshment wagon and a small locomotive shunting a train of three empty cattle wagons. It is also possible to find a boarding wagon at the back of the train in order to board the locomotive on the ground. The locomotive is equipped with a braking system and an Anti-lock Braking System (ABS). The brake system reacts automatically when the train suddenly slows down. When the locomotive brakes, the brake shoes heat up and the brake pads gradually reduce in size. The B+B brake system is a powerful system to ensure maximum safety for the locomotive: the brake pads are constantly washed and the brake shoes are replaced once per minute. On the locomotive you will find a "moving map". With this map you can follow the route the locomotive has traveled on as well as the route the locomotive has planned. The moving map is attached to the locomotive and therefore also follows the route the locomotive takes. When the locomotive approaches a curve the moving map is automatically rotated. When the locomotive is travelling through an area with a tunnel, you will see a red arrow next to the current location of the locomotive. This arrow is continuously moved to the right or left when the train is entering or leaving a tunnel. The locomotive has a driver and can be completely controlled by the user himself. This enables you to engage in real train control. You control the steering, the speed and the position of the locomotive. In addition, the driver can be equipped with a radio and can
