ServiceStack 3.9 - Parsing JSON-strings with null values to POJOs I'm working on a RESTful ServiceStack service that will have to do some JSON/XML parsing using ServiceStack.Text. As this service will be used by many applications and I would like to have the service clean, I don't want to use dynamic languages like IronPython or F# so I'm trying to follow the next rule of "create just one and keep it simple". Rule: "Create just one and keep it simple". I have two classes: public class TaxRate { public string TaxId { get; set; } public string Name { get; set; } public string Description { get; set; } public string TaxPercentage { get; set; } } public class BusinessTax { public string BusinessId { get; set; } public string BusinessType { get; set; } public string BaseTaxRateId { get; set; } public int DeductionRate { get; set; } public int Value { get; set; } } The structure of my JSON response looks like this: { "TaxId": "1", "Name": "Income Tax", "Description": "Income Tax for UK residents",

"TaxPercentage": "1.0", "Business": {
  "BusinessId": "1", "BusinessType": "Individual",
  "BaseTaxRate": { "TaxId": "1", "Name": "Income Tax", "Description": "Income Tax for UK residents", "TaxPercentage": "1.0", "Value": "100" }, "DeductionRate": "100"

In the manufacture of shaped articles such as glass sheets, it is common to use an apparatus known as a blank holder which is useful for both positioning and for stabilizing a glass sheet while being shaped. The most commonly used blank holder is known in the art as a "V" blank holder. A "V" blank holder, typically, comprises two opposed retractable sets of heating elements, each set being positioned to apply its own force to a central portion of the glass sheet, the central portion of the glass sheet including the area of such central portion which it is desired to shape, and to apply pressure to the glass sheet in order to maintain the glass sheet in a stabilized condition during the subsequent shaping process. In general, the heaters which apply such force to the glass sheet are electrically-operated, and the blank holder is operated in response to automatic control circuitry. The blank holder comprises a carousel which rotates about an axis which is approximately parallel to the major surface of the glass sheet. A conveyor is mounted on the carousel, and it is through the conveyor that the glass sheet is conveyed into and out of contact with the "V" blank holder. Typically, there is a plurality of elongate slots which extend perpendicular to the direction of rotation of the carousel. The conveyor includes a plurality of transversely oriented guide slots and each slot is formed to include one of the elongate guide slots, with the elongate slots extending vertically between adjacent ones of the guide slots on the conveyor. Each guide slot has a pair of opposed recesses on either side of the conveyor. The opposed recesses of each guide slot are of such a size and depth that when the glass sheet engages the lowermost recess of a guide slot, both the leading and trailing edges
