"The Labyrinthine labyrinth. A dungeon that always goes on. A place where the thoughts of a hero are exchanged." A large, labyrinthine dungeon that always goes on and on. In this dungeon, the most advanced-level dungeons in the Lands Between have been built, and that means you will get to delve into the deepest places as you progress. But the dungeon is not an end in itself. Along the way, many battles will arise as you fight for glory in the arena. If you want to slay your enemies in the arena and earn combat experience, simply step up to the arena and summon your allies to fight alongside you! But don't just expect a battle to be fought; a new battle system has been added! The Lavalier characters will assist you in your battles by attacking at the same time as you. The Lavalier characters use set battle patterns, and they will use the same pattern as you. * Battle strategy: • As you battle, a designated battle leader will set the battle conditions for the battle. • As time passes, the conditions set by the battle leader will gradually change, making the battle tougher. • The battle ends when either one character dies. * Lavalier characters will assist you in your battles. Note: The Lavalier characters can only be deployed during your battles. Once deployed, they will not return to standby until you manually cancel the battle. BYOND (Megatamers) game: * Multiplayer Online Game in which 10 players can gather as a team * Your efforts are rewarded with special items called "Elite Rewards" * You can accumulate the Elite Rewards after every battle, and the rewards are exchanged for Item Cash at the Item Shop * You can exchange the Item Cash that you receive for items including similar content and emotes in the Item Shop * You can also exchange items with other players' Item Cash through PvP battles in the Arena! * In addition, Elite Rewards can also be obtained by using a code (available in the Item Shop) that corresponds with a character's level. * You can make other players join your team! Play with as many or as few people as you like! ByOND (Solitaire) game: A world where romance and adventure await you! 1. Create a Character * Create a character suited to your play style! Character customization menu: Use a variety of equipment and grow your character! *

----- [steamgame/) ----- neves I only want a Steam version because is so so damn easy to port. ----- lhk282 They porting the PS2/PS1 game for the Steam version, or is this a new game? Also a simple question, the Steam version will have an open world? ~~~ neves I think they ported the PS2/PS1 version to Steam, but it's a port and not a new game. There's DLC too. The original does not have a city you can explore. ----- latenightcoding When will it be available? ~~~ neves At least next year. Q: Using Hash{Symbol}s for key in a hash table vs generate a unique hash I would like to define a Key: which in this example is a two-element array. My first alternative was to use a "hash key" object: MyClassKey = Struct.new(:first, :second) Then I have make Hash: MyClassHash = {} And another Object of constant size and define key. Key = MyClassKey.new(first_val, second_val) Generated a Hash: MyClassHash = Hash.new(Hash.new(0)) do |hsh, key| hsh[key] = MyClassHash[key] = 0 end But I found error : expected keyword_end but saw '{' It's all fine so far... But there is an advice from the Book "You Don't Know Ruby, 2nd Edition". It's after Ruby 1.9, section 15.1.5 Hash(). Also there is : The way to create a hash. It's simpler : MyClassHash = {} The example of use : MyClassHash[Key.new(1,2)] = 3 In fact, it seems a problem : Hash#[] = = should have one argument (hash) and one
