HyperMotion Technology FIFA 19 introduced “Be A Pro” mode, the official simulation of the FIFA 19 Ultimate Team mode with all FIFA points, licensed player names and club badges. With “Be A Pro,” players can earn virtual points, which can be used to create and customize player archetypes, as well as unlock a wide variety of digital packs. FIFA Ultimate Team The FIFA Ultimate Team mode returns in FIFA 22 as well as PlayStation 4, Xbox One and PC players can play the official simulation of the FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) mode on their respective platforms. In Ultimate Team mode, players can create a team of real players and compete in online matches to earn exclusive virtual items through the mode. These players can then be added to the player’s personal team and can be upgraded for free from packs of in-game currency (FUT packs) or in the case of real players, from packs of in-game currency or via the official store at games.ea.com. The Ultimate Team mode also unlocks daily, weekly and season challenges, and for PC users, players can also compete in the FIFA 22 Open Beta, which takes place prior to the retail version’s release on September 27. Gameplay Advanced Player Intelligence FIFA's EAS skill identification system makes its return with FIFA 22. EA SPORTS Football Intelligence anticipates where you are heading with every pass, so whether you are dribbling through onrushing defenders or setting up your teammates with a gorgeous through ball, FIFA 22 is on top of you. Innovation in the Attack Scouting players and displaying their best attributes through a variety of on-screen overlays make it easy to see exactly where attacking players are going, what they are going to do and how you can interrupt their movements. Most-played systems The variety of play created by new Most-Played systems and the ability to override an opposing team's most-played system mean you can immerse yourself in your favorite way to play and create something truly special. The Challenge Mode FIFA 17's revamped Challenge Mode looks for the opportunity to exceed your own best records in the game. In FIFA 22, you can play through an entire campaign as one team or as two teams using two distinctly different play styles – balanced, single-player team play, versus one-on-one, free kicks, 3v3, 2v2 and other modes. The Internet Connection Update your FIFA account with the Internet Connection and share in-depth in-game stats to help you be more confident in your play. The Coach After deciding on formations and tactics in Playmaker, you can then customize the Coach and communicate your orders to your team at the touch of a button. Take the pressure off yourself, step aside and let the coach take control. The Training Ground FIFA 22 features an all-new Training Ground. With Playmaker, you can train over a variety of Training Ground game types, including Speed Match, Set Pieces and Ultimate Team. The Squad Builder Squad Builder lets you create your own custom team or build a combination of 32 of your favorite players, just like the NFL Draft. The New User Interface AI and PACE are new settings that can be adjusted in the Menus. The new User Interface offers both a simplified and expanded way to navigate through the menus. Xbox One players will even be able to use Kinect to play the game! FIFA 20's sophomore year of gameplay is certainly going to be a welcome one for football fans around the world. The game boasts plenty of gameplay improvements and additions, and is even a step closer than ever to making a first-person football experience less like a running through a virtual minefield and more like a pleasure to play. Exclusive first-person gameplay To start with, FIFA 20 will offer an exclusive gameplay experience, featuring players moving around the pitch in first-person view. This will be used for a range of new game modes, such as the free-kick and penalty kick animations, goal explosions and the crowd's involvement, as well as the player's offsides decision and how it affects the video review. Commenting on the new first-person experience, Peter Moore, the CEO of Electronic Arts, said: "We're creating an experience which players will associate with every football game they play, be it FIFA 20 or any other title on the market today." Spartan Mode Another new addition to the game is Spartan Mode, which will be the game's best-loved extra content mode and should not be missed out by any FIFA fan. This extra mode will be available for pre-orders and on PlayStation 4 and Xbox One, at a price
