What's new:

This website will be devoted to my step-by-step journey to build a Hyundai Genesis Coupe, specifically the Generation VI Hyundai Genesis Coupe. Going to build a car from scratch, and I have plenty of experience building other cars. My intention is to help others who are planning on building their own cars, especially trying to build a car from scratch, so that they can follow my progress and help contribute to the community! Hi Jason, If you could navigate then you'll know you're on the right track. It sounds like you've got the 'brute force' method down good. I can't yet navigate myself. Look forward to seeing your pictures and updates in the future.. Well, here's a clearer picture of the Genesis Coupe and what it looks like to start in the middle. Getting Started - Body | You're in the Middle Body | Drawing Body | Polygraph Body Body | Easy Fender Body | Middle Fender Body | Fender Body | Plastic Guard Body | Middle Guard Body | Top Guard Metal and Plastics Here's the situation on the project: I bought a scrap full body metal of a honda e10. The owner of the junk yard told me he could strip it down to just the panel for like $200. So I picked up the car for $150. Next thing I know, the owner's friend wants to buy it. Initially, the plan was to do all the work myself. Now I'm looking at staying out of the car for a little while, just in case they damage the car in shipping. Also, I haven't decided what kind of body I want to build. So for now, I'm just pulling all the shapes from the body reference photo. I plan on trying to build the fender out of Technoflex and covering it with fiberglass. I would like to try and get the wheel wells to match, but that's the limit of my knowledge in that area right now. Here's how the car is at the time of this update. Is it safe to say that the middle is starting out the best? I'm almost down to the fenders. I just did the inner fenders, outer fenders and doors, and the hood. I just got around to painting the outer fenders. We'll see how it went. The Middle
