Specificities of conjugates between protein A and IgG and their removal by competing proteins. The specificities of 2 classes of conjugates prepared between protein A and IgG were studied. One class of conjugate is stable to reduction of disulphide linkages and can be reduced to the free IgG and protein A moieties. These conjugates form from IgG in the presence of protein A and can be reduced to the free IgG and protein A moieties without loss of antibody activity. The other class of conjugate forms from IgG in the presence of protein A and is cleaved within the IgG molecule to produce free protein A and IgG. The second class of conjugate is an unspecifically linked conjugate of protein A and IgG in which a number of isotypic IgG molecules link to 1 protein A molecule. The second class of conjugate is an unspecifically linked conjugate of protein A and IgG in which a number of isotypic IgG molecules link to 1 protein A molecule. The second class of conjugate is an unspecifically linked conjugate of protein A and IgG in which a number of isotypic IgG molecules link to 1 protein A molecule. The second class of conjugate is an unspecifically linked conjugate of protein A and IgG in which a number of isotypic IgG molecules link to 1 protein A molecule. While the first class of conjugate retains the ability to bind specifically to the Fc regions of IgG molecules, the second class of
