You can collapse the History palette to bring it closer to the bottom of the Layers palette or hide it altogether if you don't want to use it. You can expand it by clicking the yellow triangle in the upper right of the Layers palette or clicking the History button (a photo-shopping-type tool with a gear symbol) at the bottom of the Layers palette. The application of the shear resistance value as an indicator of the mesophilic microorganisms in water and food systems. The application of the Shear Resistance Values of water, raw milk and beer samples to indicate the presence of mesophilic microorganisms, has been investigated. The study results showed that the Shear Resistance Values of water samples had the most significant correlation with the mesophilic microorganism counts. The Shear Resistance Values of raw milk samples exhibited a strong linear correlation with the mesophilic microorganism counts. The Shear Resistance Values of beer samples were almost equal to the mesophilic microorganism counts. The Shear Resistance Values for the control samples were almost equal to their mesophilic microorganisms counts. It was found that the Shear Resistance Values of water, milk and beer samples, could be used as an indicator of the mesophilic microorganisms present in these samples. The Shear Resistance Values correlated well with the mesophilic microorganisms counts of 25 degrees C ( $r = 0.955$ ). Institutional racism and segregation stymied black Baltimoreans' chances of successfully leading their own lives and ensuring their children's futures in the city where they were born. But in the 1950s, the Marine Corps would confront the crisis of military service and racial equality head-on, achieving integration and confronting racism and segregation in the process. Montgomery County (Maryland) District Court Judge Lynn Toler heard the case Thursday that challenged the policy on the ban. The policy on the segregation of blacks and whites is being challenged by Marine Corps Capt. Andrew Steele. (Via CBS) "I am proud of the Marine Corps for achieving a system and a policy, I think, that was right," he said. "I have not seen or read a system that is more equal, that works so well for so many diverse people. And I think they should continue to be able to do so." "The fundamental issue is that at this point, the United States military is not a race-based organization," said Christine J. Griffin, the deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. "We have a system designed to bring diverse people together and deal with the biggest problems facing the country, not just war and peace." The Army has also been integrated for some time now, albeit slowly. Approximately 5,300 black servicemembers are serving in the Army.
