To examine the prevalence of malnutrition in children under the care of the pediatric intensive care unit at a public general hospital in Mexico City. Observational, cross-sectional study carried out from January to June 2007. Data were collected using a form on demographics and the Children's Nutritional Status Scale (CNS). A total of 196 patients met the inclusion criteria and were included, 60% were male and 88% were below the age of 6 years. Weight, length and head circumference decreased as age and length increased. The prevalence of malnutrition according to CNS was 14.5%. The proportion of malnourished patients was 22.1% in the group of children younger than 3 years and 11.6% in those older than 4 years. Malnutrition is a common clinical problem in the pediatric intensive care unit. Early identification of patients with malnutrition is necessary to reduce the impact of this condition on morbidity and mortality.Q: Как подключить версию Font Awesome к веб-компоненте KNPfq?
