Air pollution and daily mortality in the largest contiguous metropolitan area of the United States. A statewide population-based time-series analysis of daily mortality was performed in the largest contiguous metropolitan area of California to evaluate the impact of fine particulate matter (PM_{2.5}) and two air pollutants (ozone and nitrogen dioxide [NO₂]) on daily deaths. Counties in and around the San Francisco Bay were utilized to assess the independent and combined effects of PM_{2.5}, ozone, and NO₂ on daily mortality. We used generalized additive Poisson regression to analyze time-series data for 1985 to 2000. A simple Poisson distribution best described the distribution of deaths. We used a generalized additive Poisson model to evaluate the effect of PM_{2.5}, ozone, and NO₂ on daily mortality. Each day was assigned a statistically significant PM_{2.5} concentration, temperature, and other weather variables. At this time-series level of analysis, the estimated marginal means for the daily percentage changes in mortality for an interquartile increase in PM_{2.5} (5 microg/m³), ozone (8 ppb), and NO₂ (2 ppb) were -0.15% (-2.2 to 2.9), 0.12% (-1.3 to 1.8), and 0.09% (-0.7 to 1.0), respectively. There were significant linear associations of PM_{2.5} with on-set mortality (p The related art of interest described herein is illustrated in FIGS. 1A and 1B. FIG. 1A shows a known industry-standard fieldbus system for general background information. The fieldbus system is illustrated in the following text with reference to FIG. 1A. Referring to FIG

C++ class, it will be placed in the current source file. A C# file doesn't have the notion of "source code file". All you have is an assembly (this is the binary equivalent of a class - it's compiled to a 'file' in your operating system) You need to add it to your C# project. Either in the Project Properties/Code Generation/Compile section, or add it to the source code files (make sure that you include it in the project - you'll probably need to create a new item for it) Q: Swift: Received memory warning while scrolling In my project, when I scroll a UITableView up and down several times (to fill all of the cells), I get the message: Received memory warning. When I scroll all the way to the top and then down, however, the warning disappears. I am wondering what causes the memory warning. My code for scrolling the table is similar to the following: override func scrollViewDidScroll(scrollView: UIScrollView) { if (scrollView.contentOffset.y >= 0 && scrollView.contentOffset.y
