As a Starcaller, you must restore the lost temple to its former glory, a task that would take decades without the help of the fallen star fragments the temple recycles. Seed the fragments on temple walls to light up symbols that when stitched together make a pattern that will tell the story of the temple of the stars, the ancient outpost of the Incan. To succeed, you must first learn the puzzles of the temple, master each puzzle wall and repeat the ritual as many times as you can to finish as fast as possible in the end. The game is free to play and contains ad-free full version, but premium features will be added as paid DLC. • NEW! 5 StarCaller Levels! • NEW! more puzzles to unlock! 1 NEW LEVEL I've created a new level specifically for Starcaller. As its only playable environment it's an excellent way to test your puzzle skills! Level 5 is made up of just 15 puzzles, 5 of which are completely new! • GAME MODE WALL RACING Compete with your friends and see who can solve the first wall the fastest! • TASK SYSTEM Rules are followed every time! You're sent a task by solving a puzzle. The task is then given to other players for their solution. Rule 1: solve one puzzle to unlock a task, then solve two more puzzles to unlock two more tasks. Only the last person to solve all four puzzles can unlock the final task! Don't worry, the game stops anyone who doesn't make it. • NEW! FEATURES "Astrolabe", a Starcaller's tool, giving detailed information about the star system and the galactic map. "Starscape", showing up to ten star systems and their relevant details. "Temple", a custom created map of the temple environment. "Eclipse", a customizable object showing the current eclipse and moon phases. New puzzles are added regularly so keep checking in from time to time! The temple that was once pristine has become overgrown and disordered, you return to wade through the newly formed life and complete your life's work; the ritual to the stars. As the Starcaller you must race against the clock to restore as many temple walls as possible to their former glory. When night finally creeps

Features Key:

30 levels of difficulty
1-4 players
5 classic action-defense levels
All the levels can be played separately (no need to play one after another)

Game instructions:For beginner players I suggest to start with level 3. Concentrate on the ball, it's not that difficult - just make sure your wrist and defender won't go over the ball to prevent scoring. Now let's go back to the field again. Before you start ball throwing, make your defender go after the ball to balance his action. Otherwise he can't score, even if he grabs the ball at full speed. Use the claw to keep the ball near the centre of the field. Get the ball and then make a break move towards the goal line - But don't forget to make your defender get on you left side to stop you from scoring. Once you secure the ball, time for a break move. Be careful not to let your defender rush you from behind and catch you off guard. He will grab the ball from you so be ready to move back. Roll under your defender's arm then pop back and run into the goal. If you manage to score without a defender standing in your way, you will win the game.

OH! MOCHI! Game controls:

- WASD to move forward/backward
- E to move left/right
- Space to use the claw
- Arrow keys to move up/down
- F key to use in-game map
- M key to pause/resume

Flow is a super addictive free flow motion game with a lot of twists. The object of the game is to flow through the various obstacles in the game, while avoiding being caught by the monsters that pop up at the right moment. Flow will flow through the blocks, through the spikes, through the monsters, and through the background. With each new block, the game becomes more difficult, and with each new monster, the chances of being caught increase. Each of the monsters has its own special abilities which can be used to your advantage. Flow will flow through all of these obstacles. While flow's movement through the game is physics based, Flow is no longer a physics-based simulation. This means you don't have to worry about the laws of physics slowing you down. Flow instead follows a set of rules that makes it easier to control. Rules like "If you're falling, use the momentum of gravity to help you get up". Flow will not care how fast you move. It will only care about what you want to do.Flow is easy to get into. By pressing the space bar while you're in motion, you can freeze the current frame, and think about what to do next. Once you have thought about what to do, and where to go, you can start pressing the left or right arrow keys to go in the direction of your choice. At any time, you can press the Up or Down Arrow keys to have Flow stand up. This is a great way to stay on track. The game also features a restart feature. You can use this to restart your life, if the current game seems too tough.Your current life count can be seen at the top left of the game. When your life count reaches zero, and you are not yet out of the level, Flow will start over.You will have a number of obstacles to overcome in each level. Some of these obstacles are colored red. If you touch them, your life will be subtracted, and you will be forced to start the level over. In some levels, you will need to use an ability to pass an obstacle that you have touched. You can use these abilities whenever you like, and you can have multiple abilities, or use only a single one. If you use an ability that doesn't work, Flow will tell you to change it, and it will adjust to fit your current needs.The game features two modes: play and survival. Play mode is meant to be a fun mode. There are no lives, and no time limits. The object

Audio Entertainment Ltd Phantasm Audio Entertainment Ltd (PAEL) is the music company behind the visionary trance-techno productions of Aaron Near and its trademarked Phantasm brand. Based in a converted power station outside London, beginning life as a home studio, PAEL has brought the Phantasm sound into the mainstream for over a decade. Michael Hannon- Church Leytonstone, Essex Founded in 1999 with the goal of releasing drum and bass based music under a new brand, Phantasm was one of the first to exploit the massive growth in popularity of melodic and ambient music. The company was home to artists such as Astronomy, Dub Riders, Ghost Club and Rob Gretton, and rapidly became one of the most successful UK-based independent record labels of recent times, releasing music across all electronic genres including drum and bass, progressive, techno, happy hardcore and trance. While overseeing the compilation of, and launching new artists, but never losing sight of the music on which it built its reputation, the company also released 2 free compilation albums, [certified gold by the BPI] Dreamscape and Doomscape, which have each sold in excess of 20,000 copies. The compilation series became a new phenomenon in electronic music, and proved to be an extremely popular radio format for DJs and DJ producers alike. Aaron Near Aaron Near began as an apprentice at the House of Elgar, the in-house production company for Liverpool's famed Strawberry Studios, producing music for such future superstars as Louis XIV. After making a record, typically for release on the Phonogram label, an employee of the record company would visit a local studio to sample the music for approval. Near could be found in the psychedelic backwater of the Ovipositor studios in London's underground scene, creating fresh & untested music for any label. In 1998, an incident at a party at the Aphrodite Club, near Liverpool Street tube, left Near traumatized, leading to what later became personal & professional demons. Although he agreed to step into a restructuring role at Sarah-Jane Fenton's Station to Station Records to manage an artist roster, Near set up a new label of the same name, and spent 15 months re-producing, re-mastering and re-writing hundreds of hours of music, until he could afford to hire a producer to work with him on a track-by-track basis. In the midst of this
