A long time ago, people used to stream movies on computers. These days.CKGL-FM CKGL-FM is a Canadian radio station located in St. John's, Newfoundland and Labrador. Owned by Stingray Digital, the station broadcasts a classic hits format branded on-air as Oldies 102.7. The station's studios are located at 2329 Falls Road, while its transmitter is located at the southeast end of the Bonavista Peninsula, near Sandy Cove. History On October 10, 1994, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) licensed the Elwood Broadcasting Limited, on behalf of the Bowater-Boordun family, to open a new FM station at St. John's, replacing CKGZ, which had to discontinue operations following the collapse of its transmitter tower. The new station signed on in 1996 at 102.7 MHz, playing easy-listening adult contemporary music as "Memories" 102.7. On December 29, 1999, the station was granted authority to add 600 watt and increase its effective radiated power to 18,000 watts. On March 25, 2006, the station was granted authority to reduce its power to 24,000 watts, and to add an FM translator, at 89.3 MHz, in Port aux
